On August 31, 2400 sophomores, juniors, and seniors crossed the bridge with their hopes, dreams, and plans for the 1964-1965 school year.

While sophomores awaited their first Pep Club meeting and frog dissection, seasoned juniors were eager to begin American History courses and Prom plans. The dreams of seniors were spiced with "A's" in chemistry, completed term papers, and new realms in leadership.

The three classes joined forces in many aspirations for the year. Everyone was expectant of the first issues of the Epic, the yearbook campaign, the band's performances, and for the production of Our Town. There were hopes of a football victory over the Olathe Eagles, a trophy-winning debate season, a chance to meet West's exchange student, a conference-winning basketball team, and the Christmas formal. All the ingredients were present—enthusiasm, well-laid plans, and capable leadership—to make West's third year its best—most successful ever.

ADMINISTRATION

Concrete steps leading to an entrance of blue-grey doors—this is the view from the bridge. Doors leading to a queue of draperied office windows—this is the view from the bridge. In the Administration offices game tickets were sold, morning announcements were given, and absences were excused.

Here Mr. Selves served as an intermediary between parents and the school and organized West's activity. Vice principals Mr. Smith and Mr. Johnson planned activity period schedules and handled disciplinary problems. The counselors busily corrected schedule conflicts and prepared Vikings for entering college and finding jobs. Office ladies typed grade cards and handled business transactions as the nurse soothed headaches and sore throats.

Though their offices were not at West, the Board of Education and Superintendent Dr. McEachen were an important part of West's administration. These men oversaw all West functions and planned a basic code for all Shawnee Mission District schools.

This is West's Administration.

"To improve, promote, and interpret the democratic way of life; To emphasize the importance of economic efficiency, the necessity of civic responsibilities; To develop attitudes of questioning, weighing and evaluating; To build a broad knowledge of the social and scientific world; To promote those moral and spiritual values which are considered common to all members of our society; To develop understanding and the proper respect for honest work." These were just a few of the basic philosophies and objectives that the Shawnee Mission District strove to achieve.

The five members of the Board of Education—Mr. Roy E. Welch, president; Mr. Richard V. Garrett, vice-president; Mr. Kenneth P. Rankin, secretary; Dr. John O. Baeke, treasurer; and Mr. Henry M. Turrell—with the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Howard D. McEachen, coordinated curriculums and planned two new schools. Evidence of their success was congruent with high scholastic rating of the Shawnee Mission High School District.

A Learning, Active Year

Mr. Arthur W. Selves, principal, and Mr. Charles Smith and Mr. Dean Johnson, the two vice principals, successfully guided the growing Viking clan through the halls of Shawnee Mission West for the third year of its short but resounding history.

The enrollment climbed to the twenty-four hundred mark so there were crowded classrooms, complicated schedules and more teachers for the efficient Viking directors to regulate. The admittance of Mr. Johnson to the position of vice principal aided in these increasing administrative duties.

The two vice principals tackled the disciplinary difficulties and aided in the scheduling of various clubs and assemblies for the activity periods.

Mr. Selves held the top office and so shouldered the heaviest responsibilities. He worked to improve the relationship between students and parents, gave the morning announcements, and introduced assemblies. Once active as a coach in basketball and football, he carried on in the high-spirited support of West's Pep Club for bold teams and high standards.

Behind the scenes of school life, the guidance counselors effectively and efficiently handled the problems of West's twenty-four hundred most important products: the students.

Long before West's official August 31 opening, Mr. Paul Arnold, Mrs. Virnelle Fletcher, Miss Jo Ann Huklenbruk and, new to West's faculty, Mr. Jack Wiechmann provided each student with a workable schedule.

Meeting with their respective counselors during school, students discussed National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests, college board examinations and various other test scores and academic problems. Remembering that local businesses sometimes contact West when in need of after school help, the counseling office maintained a list of students desiring part-time jobs. For Vikings faced with the important decision of where to continue their schooling, the counselors arranged for visits by representatives from one hundred colleges and trade schools.

As Office Ladies Type

With smiling helpfulness the ladies in West's office guided troubled Vikings through another term. Mrs. Boyer, school nurse, managed a dependable refuge for ailing students. Minor hangnails and headaches plus more serious cases—broken bones, faintings and the advanced stages of Pop-Quiz-in-English —assured Mrs. Boyer of a busy schedule. Vikings seeking readmittance to school after absences due to illness also found their way to her office. In the quieter moments of her day, Mrs. Boyer telephoned absentees.

All of the secretarial duties rested in the care of the office ladies. Mrs. Sharbutt acted as Mr. Selves' secretary. Mrs. Wasson, the vice-principals' secretary, recorded all students' grades, as West's registrar. The counselors also required a secretary, Mrs. Parkison. Keeping track of every pupil's whereabouts was the job of Mrs. Holmes, attendance clerk. Mrs. Parks operated the switchboard and the intercom system. Handling transactions to supply West with needed materials and selling pre-sale game tickets were the duties of the bookkeeper, Mrs. Smith.

Setting up counselors' appointments occupies a major part of Mrs. Donna Parkison's time.

The thirty-four cafeteria ladies daily served four famished lunch periods again this term. The preparation of their 1400 meals per day required an afternoon and morning of work. This year's regular lunches often turned out special as new and different dishes, such a tacos and shrimp, were added to menus. The ladies made school lunches spirited, too, with pennants, proclaiming "Beat North" planted in pregame day desserts and salads.

On West's well-groomed grounds, the fifteen-man custodial staff mowed the lawn, and tended the shrubs. Their indoor jobs included cleaning the rooms and halls, arranging places for assemblies and parties, handling in-going and out-going shipments, and protecting West around the clock. They also answered distress calls to fix pencil sharpeners, open jammed doors, and bring chalk. Mr. Hopkins, head custodian, explained "We guard the Viking stronghold!"

Understanding Of West

Parents scurried to and fro in crowded halls as they retraced their youngster's footsteps during Shawnee Mission West's annual Back-To-School Night.

The activities began in the auditorium with the introduction of teachers and West's foreign exchange student. The opening ceremonies also included the introduction of Parent-Teacher Club officers, Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Hawkins, president; Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Fisher, secretary-treasurer; and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Olbrich, publicity chairman.

After the introductions, parents hurried to homeroom and then to first hour. Directed by student guides and maps of West, parents went from room to room following their teen-ager's daily routine. During classes, teachers explained to the parents the complexities of the course. Study halls found parents in the cafeteria dining on coffee and doughnuts.

"Back-To-Schoolers" had five minutes to pass from class to class, and most winded parents made it in the alloted time. For those who didn't, school officials made an exception and cancelled detentions.

In this wing students were offered a diversified range of subjects. French, Spanish, German, and Latin were offered to those interested in language. Girls studied clerical practice and family and home, while boys attended classes in auto mechanics and business law. Drama classes pondered over the fine points of play production, while geometry classes derived the side-angle-side formula.

Sophomore scientists tromped through the marshy swamp of West's own creek on biology field trips. Senior chemists determined the molecular weight of oxygen and physicists observed sound waves. English III classes studied the travails of Macbeth as the mixed chorus memorized key signatures and the girls' gym classes prepared a Christmas modern dance.

Eulogies And PYGMALION

Varying sentences, paralleling phrases, and conjugating verbs, this year's sophomores concentrated on clear, concise written work. Original themes, essays, and even poetry provided practice for their future high school work. Another medium of literary improvement presented itself in such forms as Usher's fall, Lancelot's victory over Gareth and Julius Caesar's eulogy delivered by Mark Anthony as played by Marlon Brando. This wide assortment of creative writings also taught English II students about various forms of literature. New ideas and different concepts appeared in the course with four new English teachers.

Juniors studied English literary history from Beowulf to Pygmalion with many stops in between for the Canterbury Tales, Macbeth, and other English classics. Learning to recognize characteristics of various social periods in England—Elizabethan, Romantic, and Victorian—revealed much to the students about literature and England's past. Because this year was their last year of required grammar study, juniors made a final review of punctuation and word usage.

Aid Seniors' Expression

The main feature of the English IV course was a study of the correct attitude and method necessary for writing. With the guidance of their Thought and Statement books, seniors learned first to write purely factual themes. Later, as their respect for facts and their feeling of responsibility to develop fact-based ideas grew, they were given more freedom to include their own opinions. Toward the end of the year, they looked at completely creative works, such as Hamlet, Othello, and collections of modern poetry and short stories. Completion of the 2,000 word, month-long research paper, which made use of their fact-finding skills, rounded out the study.

The remainder of the seniors' eight textbooks especially helped college-bound students. Thirty Days to a More Powerful Vocabulary provided background for college entrance exams. English Grammar and Composition served as a review of technical aspects of writing correctly. It also devoted a section to preparing students for scholastic tests. For those Vikings not planning to enter college, the book offered applications for everyday life.

Aim Work At Perfection

Artists and craftsmen alike worked hard to develop individual skills. Art I classes studied the varying values and intensities of color and learned the basic principles of drawing. Using paper, paint, and ink as media, they drew various designs, sketches, and portraits. Art II classes advanced from the wood prints to intaglios and collages. Advanced classes studied the commercial arts and sought how to best employ the talents they had acquired.

The crafts classes studied art in its third dimension. The study of art and architecture, and the history of sculpture, prepared students for the later attempts of creating their own masterpieces. Using a variety of paper, wire and plaster, students worked with sculptures. In the unit on ceramics, both hands and wheels shaped pottery. Pupils also made intricate jewelry which was sold during the Art Fair.

The final climax for every student was the Art Fair, sponsored by the Student Congress in the spring. Here they displayed perfected pieces for viewing by other students, the faculty, and the Parent Club.

Courses Train Vikings

For Vikings planning to go directly from school desks to office desks, West offered many courses which provided necessary business knowledge. Filling out account forms for imitation companies gave students experience in dealing with money. Improving their income potential as future secretaries was a basic aim of the shorthand pupils. The clerical practice class helped Vikings who had taken typing by teaching them practical applications of this skill and other office skills, such as operation of the mimeograph and filing. Secretarial practice, which began with each student interviewing an actual worker, was a two-hour course that developed the skills of senior girls with knowledge of typing and shorthand.

College-bound students also found it advantageous to take these business courses. The skills which they gained were valuable job insurance.

West's notehand class was especially helpful to students concerned with taking good notes in college. It taught the best organizing methods plus a personal shorthand to enable pupils to take notes more quickly.

Business Specialists

Adjusting the margin-stops can become a complex problem, Rick Gilliam decides.

Transforming their hunting and pecking into the swifter touch typing, personal typing students found that their initial learning of home row keys advanced to mastery of the entire keyboard. Vocational typists concentrated on the make-up of business letters and various forms and papers. Skills gained in typing classes heightened Vikings' scores on NOMA and civil service examinations, thus increasing their chances of obtaining good secretarial positions.

As possible future secretaries boosted typing skills, their perspective bosses enhanced their business acumen in business law class. In this class, students coped with the legal complexities of contracts, suits, bailment, and insurance and gained an important comprehension of checking and charges.

Sixty members of West's student body utilized a multitude of office equipment in business machines class. Here, students learned to efficiently operate adding machines, posting machines, calculators, transcribing machines, and duplicators.

Mr. Strickler, his badgering attitude and dry humor at is best, gesticulates in his typical manner while striving to explain an intricate algebraic equation and its roots to an interested algebra class.

Analyze, Induce, Utilize

Analyzing previous conceptions of numbers, sets, and operations was one of the primary goals of Algebra I classes this year. Through solving equations and proving formulas, Vikings became more familiar with both rational expressions and irrational numbers. Ratio and proportion, slope and intercept, and powers and roots were topics for investigation in Algebra I.

For Algebra II scholars, mastering the principles of linear programming and of completing the square laid the groundwork for a study of quadratic equations. Computation specialists then encountered the challenge of logarithms and functional notation and the abstract charm of induction and probability.

Meanwhile, those Vikings enrolled in refresher arithmetic gauged their studies to a basic knowledge of mathematics and its practical applications. They worked problems dealing with such business practices as installment buying and insurance, and they noted the use of the metric system in dealing with latitude, nautical miles, and magnetic compasses.

"All The Angles" Of Math

Prisms and pyramids formed the framework for investigation of many geometric phenomena as mathematical-minded Vikings learned to analyze and prove theorems. Geometry scholars also studied the basic methods of induction and proof by inversion. After learning useful principles concerning lines, angles, and plane figures, they advanced to coordinate geometry and the study of spheres and rectangular solids.

Logarithms and radian measure served as fundamental tools for studying functions of angles for trigonometry students. They used the properties of sine, cosine, and tangent to solve many practical problems involving direction, forces and velocities. Students encountered right spherical triangles and haversines as they progressed to spherical trigonometry.

Classes in analytic geometry discovered some of the convenient relationships that arise when algebra and geometry are combined. Rectangular coordinates, parametric equations, and curve fitting laid the groundwork for a brief survey of solid analytic geometry.

Physicists Encounter

Plotting the path of a projectile, calculating the width of a molecule, and observing a ringing bell silenced by a vacuum were all a part of physics—the study of the relationship between energy and matter.

While increasing their understanding of theories and fundamentals, West physics students also enlarged their vocabularies. Study and expert teaching transformed ergs, dynes, photons, and an array of scientific terms from textbook copy to everyday speech.

After familiarizing themselves with the metric system of measurement, West physicists probed, with various formulas and lab work, the fields of motion, displacement, heat, sound, light, electricity, electronics, and nuclear physics.

With new textbooks and equipment, plus greater emphasis on a mathematical approach to the subject, some students undertook an enriched course in technical physics. This along with regular physics, gave interested Vikings a solid background for future study in the fields of physical science.

West's Chemistry Dilletantes Dabble In The Elements

Chemistry classes started the year's experimentation with the many different chemicals by exploring the Quantum Theory. This was the study of the interaction of matter and energy. Studying this theory, students learned how to set up and use the electron equipment, note similarities, observe data, and interpret information gained from the experiment.

After this introduction, experiments expanded to cover units on organic chemistry, electro-chemistry, solutions, the gas laws and qualitative analysis. The experiments were mainly of two types—descriptive or quantitative. The latter led to the discovery of some unknown. For these experiments, balances, graduated cylinder, and burrettes aided in the accuracy of results. At all times teachers stressed the importance of laboratory safety techniques as they often worked with hazardous and combustible materials. Films and weekly problem sets accompanied the text and connected the varying experiments. Throughout the year, pupils created an appreciation and realization of the interraction of the many single chemicals to form the complex compounds utilized every day.

Complexities Of Science

Biology I and II students tried to gain a better knowledge of their scientific-minded world. Using the microscopes, scales, and metric system, they did much lab work and utilized the scientific method. Viewing first through the 125x lens the tiny one celled protozoa, they gradually added the study of cells, tissues, organs, and systems until they could better view the most complex of all—the human being. Students also worked with the plant kingdom. For lab, dissections demonstrated the very constituents of life.

Detailed projects and experiments concluded the research of many students and these they entered in a variety of science fairs—the Junior or Senior Academy of Science or the Shawnee Mission District Fair.

The applied science class was almost entirely a lab course. Lab exercises covered a very broad range of interests as students studied nearly every physical science, including physics, chemistry, astronomy, biology, and geology. The course acquainted students with the broad field of science and pointed out the more practical roles of each in their everyday lives.

Experts On Past Events

As "big stick," "new deal," and "cold war" blended into their vocabularies, West students discovered that American history enhanced both their patriotism and understanding of their fascinating historical past.

Studying history as it was being made, juniors in twenty-six daily classes deliberated the issues and clashing philosophies of bygone elections. They ascertained that many of these issues reappeared and were exemplified in this year's Johnson-Goldwater campaign. Outside reading and class debate provided more insight into politics and government.

World history curriculum, meanwhile, took interested Vikings from the dawn of civilization to the atomic era. All history classes placed emphasis not only on specific dates, but also on the "whys" behind incidents of man's colorful annals. This instruction helped Vikings understand the purpose of studying history: Avoid repeating mistakes made in the past and to provide knowledge necessary for a better analysis to today's world.

Vikings Investigate The

The government of the United States brought careful analysis from citizenship students, while the ideologies of other nations received considerable attention from international relations classes.

Citizenship familiarized seniors with the foundations and basic fundamentals of the American government. It traced the history of the government from the Constitution to the Test Ban Treaty, and enlightened students on the executive, judiciary, and legislative branches of the government. Through classroom discussions, seniors applied citizenship to the presidential election. Mock congressional procedure orientated Vikings with contemporary legislation.

International relations dealt with the interdependence and relative affairs of different societies, nations, and cultures in the world today. Students observed economic, social, and political systems. Each student had an assignment of gaining as much knowledge as possible on separate sections of the world, learning the traditions and customs of that section.

Handicrafts, model homes, and mechanically perfect automobiles marked the accomplishments of the students enrolled in Shawnee Mission West's industrial arts division. The three sections of engineering—idea-making, creation, and repairing—taught students how to use their hands dextrously.

Future architects were the idea-making section, students in intermediate drawing learned the fundamentals of drafting and varied types of drawing, while students in architectural drafting actually constructed small model homes.

In the creation department, shop students designed and made projects they themselves had chosen. In metal shop, students used aluminum, sheet metal, and tool steel to make objects that included useful hand tools, lamps, and metal stands. Students in wood shop turned out high quality furniture.

The repairing division included future mechanics. Students in auto mechanics worked on different makes and models of cars and determined the cause of their malfunctions. Brakes were re-lined and points reset by West's teams of grease monkeys.

Aspects Of Homemaking

Simple styles, patterns, and cottons gave way to complex designs and fine woolens as clothing classes increased sewing techniques. Students studied various fabric types and correct use of line, design, and color for their own wardrobes. While modeling their styles, they concentrated on the qualities of good grooming.

Students in foods classes studied nutrition and prepared special diets. Learning to budget meals led to planning menus for these budgets. They analyzed table setting, service, and etiquette. Units on each of the three basic meals followed units on snacks and the party foods. Students from Cuba and Paris made it possible to experiment with dishes such as Guisado de Pollo, panatela, and the tempting French pastries.

Rolling "r's" and nasal "n's" drifted from the French and Spanish rooms as first and second year students drilled in grammar and structure, and third and fourth year linguists delved into the literature and history of France or Spain.

Topics treated in French classes ranged from "Sur le Pont d'Avignon" to Cyrano de Bergerac and from the renaissance to French cuisine. Enterprising Vikings also made use of subscriptions to two French magazines: Plaisir de France and Realite. Slides, films, and records enriched students' appreciation of the geography and culture of France.

German students at Shawnee Mission West studied the language that came within one vote of being the national language of the United States. Students in German III worked on vocabulary and conversational German. All three German classes presented short skits and dialogues, which were written and performed by the students themselves.

Vocal And Instrumental

The music division of Shawnee Mission West gained unprecedented fame for the third year. Mr. William Oldham's choral group had the distinction of being directed by Mr. Fred Waring, Jr., while Mr. David Circle's marching band had the opportunity of performing during the half-time of the Kansas City Chiefs-Oakland Raiders nationally televised football game.

The music department had two main sections: instrumental and choral. All classes studied music of different types and times, besides learning music appreciation and theory.

Mr. Circle's instrumentalists played at West's football and basketball games, with the marching band performing intricate precision marches during half-time shows in the football season. The orchestra gave performances at the spring concert and the Christmas assembly besides appearing in the Sound of Music.

Mr. Oldham led the A Cappella Choir, the Girls' Choir, the Mixed Chorus, and the Girls' Glee in performances at West and area schools and churches. Appearances at West included the Christmas assembly, the Spring concert, and several assemblies before the student body throughout the year.

The five driving instructors utilized films to visualize principles of accident prevention plus dramatic demonstrations to display the great distance required to stop a speeding car. They arranged lectures in which guest speakers expanded upon insurance costs and liability laws. Trainees employed various apparatus in determining each other's visual acuity, depth perception, night vision and reaction time. Kansas highway patrolmen gave all West students the required state driving examinations in class.

In accordance with the "experience is the best teacher" adage, students received six hours of actual behind-the-wheel instruction. Forceful voices filled the air as speech students strove to deliver their orations with the thought of perfecting speech fundamentals. Organization, content, and delivery were found to be important components of proper public speaking. Impromptu speaking involved quick thinking, while humorous speeches were an excellent opportunty for the speaker to expose his wit. Informative and demonstrative speeches provided the audience with new information and gave the speaker practice in presentation.

Students of Debate I, II, and III developed dialectic as well as speaking techniques. With fifteen minutes of speaking time, the debater employed impromptu logic and persuasion on the subject of nuclear weapons control. Viking debaters visited high schools and colleges in Kansas on their travels to debate tournaments, as well as hosting a tournament at West. The success of the debating season was evident on awards day when many new trophies were added to West's growing awards cases.

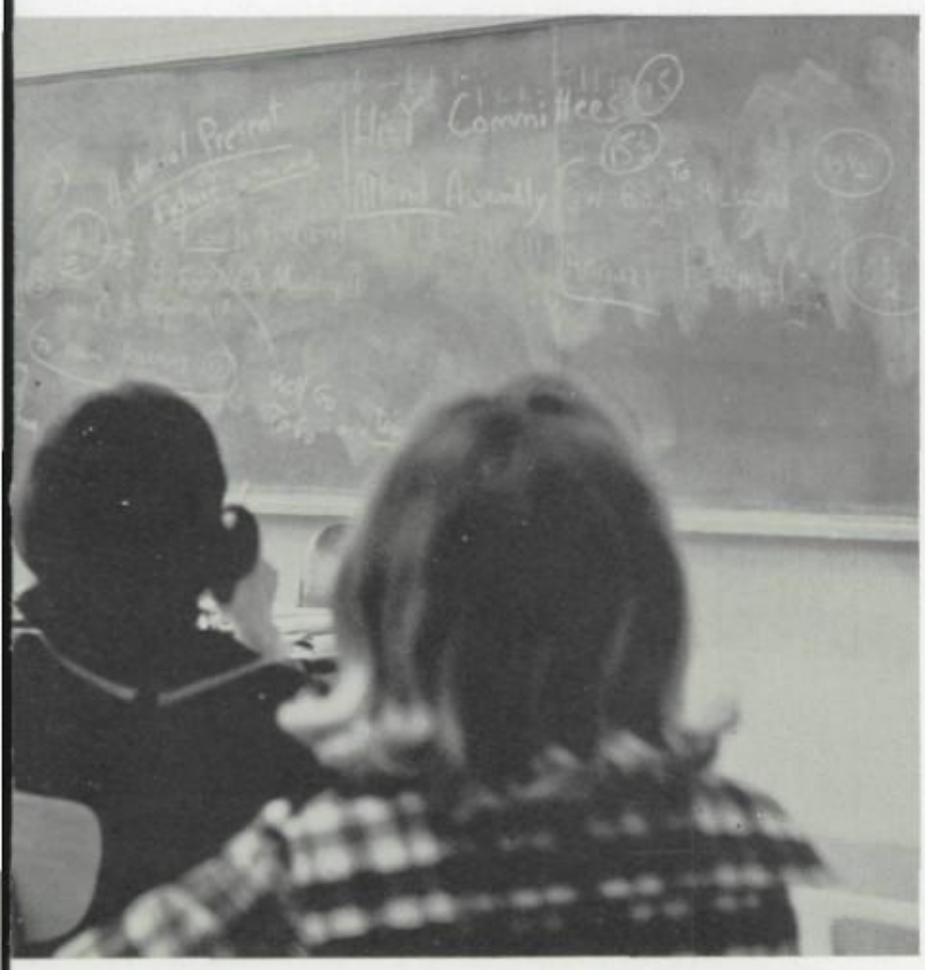
Dramatists And Journalists Develop Creative Skills



Under the direction of Mr. Coplin, drama classes studied play production and read various types of dramatic literature. They also viewed the development of drama from the early Greeks. First, students explored costuming, scenery, and phases of the technical theater. In a unit on make-up, they produced a variety of characters, using each other as models. They also experimented with the lighting and sound mechanisms used in presenting a play.

Based on test scores, a few students were chosen to attend a musical production at Coffeyville, Kansas, and to see a play produced by Kansas State Teachers College at Emporia.

Mr. Aiman instructed first year journalism classes in newspaper etiquette and guided second year students in putting out the school newspaper. Vikings taking both courses developed managing and advertising techniques as well as writing abilities.

Journalism I students practiced writing copy and headlines, and Journalism II students applied knowledge and experience gained in Journalism I in producing weekly editions of the Epic.

Hearty males utilized many of West's forty acres in touch football in the fall and sweated through the rugged "giant ball" in the spring. Library Provides A Large

A careful search through the library's card catalogue for "Poe, Edgar Allen" is undertaken by Rod Richardson.

During the third year of West's library services, Miss Verda Hostetler, aided by Mr. John Kiesow, catalogued nearly ten thousand books which included many new materials. The librarians' main interest was putting books on the shelves where students could find needed resources. The shelves held satisfying sources of both reference and reading entertainment.

Modern conveniences aided Vikings in research. The services of a "Reader Printer" and two microfilm machines were always in demand. Teachers used a time-saving filmstrip previewer.

The library subscribed to one hundred and thirty magazines. Along with the standard American publications, Spanish and French students enjoyed "Jour de France" and "Life en Espanol." To keep up with current events, newspapers were taken from the Kansas City, New York, and Topeka areas. Students turned to the shelves of reference materials when term papers and other numerous reports were due. Manuals, dictionaries, and encyclopedias of science, history and literature found the most frequent use.

Student Congress Officers Lead West's Many Activities

The Shawnee Mission West Student Congress completed its third successful year of establishing a spirit of co-operation between students and faculty. The officers were Gary Olbrich, president; Dennis Delozier, vice-president; Nancy Jo Brown, secretary; and Linda Henry, treasurer. Students elected these officers the previous year, and they worked through the summer planning the year's activities. With Mr. Davis as their sponsor, they carried out these plans and many other beneficial programs.

The president organized the Executive Committee meeting, represented the student body at large school gatherings, and was the final link between students and faculty. The vice president presided over the regular Student Congress meetings. The secretary recorded the minutes and typed up copies of these for the home room representatives, while the treasurer kept track of all money used for such student transactions as dances, concessions, and directory sales. On orientation days, these officers welcomed back old students and acquainted new sophomores with crowded classrooms and Viking spirit.

Congress Committees Busy

Just as in any governing body, Shawnee Mission West's Student Congress worked in separate committees to expedite various school services.

The worthwhile duties performed by the Safety Committee chairmanned by Jim Shaffer, included posting the best routes to out-of-town sports events. Members also attended the Kansas State Safety Conference.

The Elections Committee, with Jan Maisch at the helm, conducted all the student body elections. From petitioning to the counting of ballots, the committee executed each election successfully. Among the committee's other concerns was the screening of potential candidates' grades and eligibilities.

The Assemblies Committee, under the guidance of Chairman Donna Holmes, charted the course of entertainment of all varieties for each grade class and all-school assemblies. Outstanding assemblies this year included an appearance by Sheila James, television actress, and comments on sportsmanship by Burt Kahmann.

And Find Lost Objects

The Student Congress Service and Publications Committee found their traditional, helpful tasks to be seasonal. Autumn brought the job of the assembling and the sale of the handy Viking directories; Winter, West's Christmas card "post office," in which students exchanged greetings with others in the Shawnee Mission schools; and Spring, the Art Fair. Mark Jorgensen, Service and Publications Committee head, also was responsible for issuing the sometimes dreaded "dance assignments" to Congress members.

The Student Relations Committee, under Pat Moore, operated West's mine of mislaid material, the lost and found. Often passing away study hall time hidden in room 201, members of this committee serviced seekers of lost wallets, purses, gym clothes, and jackets.

Whether painting newspapers pasted to the bridge windows or creating a medley of fall colors in crepe paper for the artistic Christmas dance ornaments, Jan Sanders' Social Committee showed avid ingenuity in planning and decorating this year's dances.

Advertisement of all Student Congress-sponsored activities occupied the members of Shirley Gosset's Publicity Committee. Trying different effects, such as the posters for the Christmas Formal which dangled from the cafeteria ceiling, committee members spent evenings at school making over forty posters for each event. They were also charged with writing Student Congress intercom announcements and reporting about West to several local newspapers.

The intramurals committees, girls' and boys', offered Vikings the opportunity to take part in competitive recreation. Allen Sander and his committee organized after school and Saturday morning football, basketball, baseball, and wrestling contests. The student-faculty basketball game was their project, also. The Girls Intramurals committee attended and sponsored Interschool "play days."

Headed by Mike Carr, the exchange committee spent its busiest weeks during March raising money for next year's exchange student.

Pep Club Executives Pilot Pepster's School Spirit

Pep Club officers, backed by the executive committee, and eighteen hundred students, led the Pep Club through one continual roar of organized school spirit.

The Pep Club officers were president, Tom Baker; vice president, Rusty French; treasurer, Chris Rhodes; and secretary, Dianne Caskey. The executive committee represented the sophomore, junior, and senior classes, the band, Junior Varsity, and Varsity cheerleaders and the Letterman's Club.

The officers worked through the summer and school year to organize the peppiest pep club yet. Regulating uniforms, making rules, and selling memberships led to scheduling pep skits, speakers, and programs for regular Pep Club meetings on Friday. Special projects added to the enthusiasm of the Vikings' pep. One was Viking SH-MI-WE-VI, the mascot which led West in its high-spirited cheering. The Pep Club also dug up an old treasure chest from a Viking ship to secure the spoils of defeated teams.

Through Pep Club, Vikings

A blatant cry of Viking battle horns prompting a thunderous "charge!", a horn-hooting motorcade to Homecoming, Friday morning pep concerts on the bridge, ShMiWeVi's vibrant introduction, and a Viking treasure chest of Eagle feathers, stuffed Bears, and Indian tomahawks marked West's soundingboard for school spirit: Pep Club, 1964-1965.

Entrance into Pep Club brought a temporary loss of individuality. Each single member became a vital component of a brilliant, gold and black mass that provided Viking athletes that extra and essential mid-season push. In Friday's activity period Pep Club members laughed at spirit-raising skits, reviewed the week's scores and statistics, voted for cheerleaders, Homecoming queen, and basketball sweetheart, learned cheers and listened to energetic and informative talks by coaches, guest speakers, and team members.

Vikings will always remember West Pep Club's out-numbering of the opposition even at away games. Pep Club effervescence has become synonymous with spirit, as in the words recalled by Mr. Selves: "We're seasoned campaigners and we love a good battle!"

Energetic Cheerleaders Boost

Enthusiastic cheerleaders played an important part in rousing the Viking Spirit. First on Friday mornings, their lively cheers organized pep rallies to set loose the contagious and earnest Viking pep. Midway through the day, both Junior and Varsity squads promoted more spirit at the pep club meeting. Closing with "See You at the Game," Vikings promised to cheer their teams on to victory later that night. At these games, in the crisp air of football weather, effects of "F-I-G-H-T," carried not only down to the field to push the team over the goal line, but even farther, to drown cheers of visiting pep clubs. At the close of each game, a loyal "T-E-A-M" and "Alma Mater" emphasized the accomplishments of a hard fought battle.

The team, pep club members, and cheerleaders each in their own way prepared for these battles—the team on the field and students in pep club. Only after practicing two nights a week on the bridge, did cheerleading squads feel prepared to cheer their teams on to victory.

The Vikette's Routines

"We, the members of the Vikettes, girls' drill team, dedicate ourselves and our abilities to endeavor to provide entertainment for and representation of Shawnee Mission West High School." Sponsored by Mrs. Carol Ditz, the 1964-65 drill team marched to the high stepping goals of this, their constitution.

Practicing every fourth hour, West's Vikettes sought perfection to accentuate their gold and black uniforms. They concentrated on marching and coordination, while strengthening their personalities.

The drill team marched with the band in routines designed by Jan Sanders and Marty Fetzer for basketball and home football games and the annual Overland Park and Christmas parades. Accompanied by West's Drum Ensemble, they marched during half time for the Kansas City Chiefs. Their final performance was written by and dedicated to the senior members, who had then fulfilled the goals of their constitution for S.M. West.

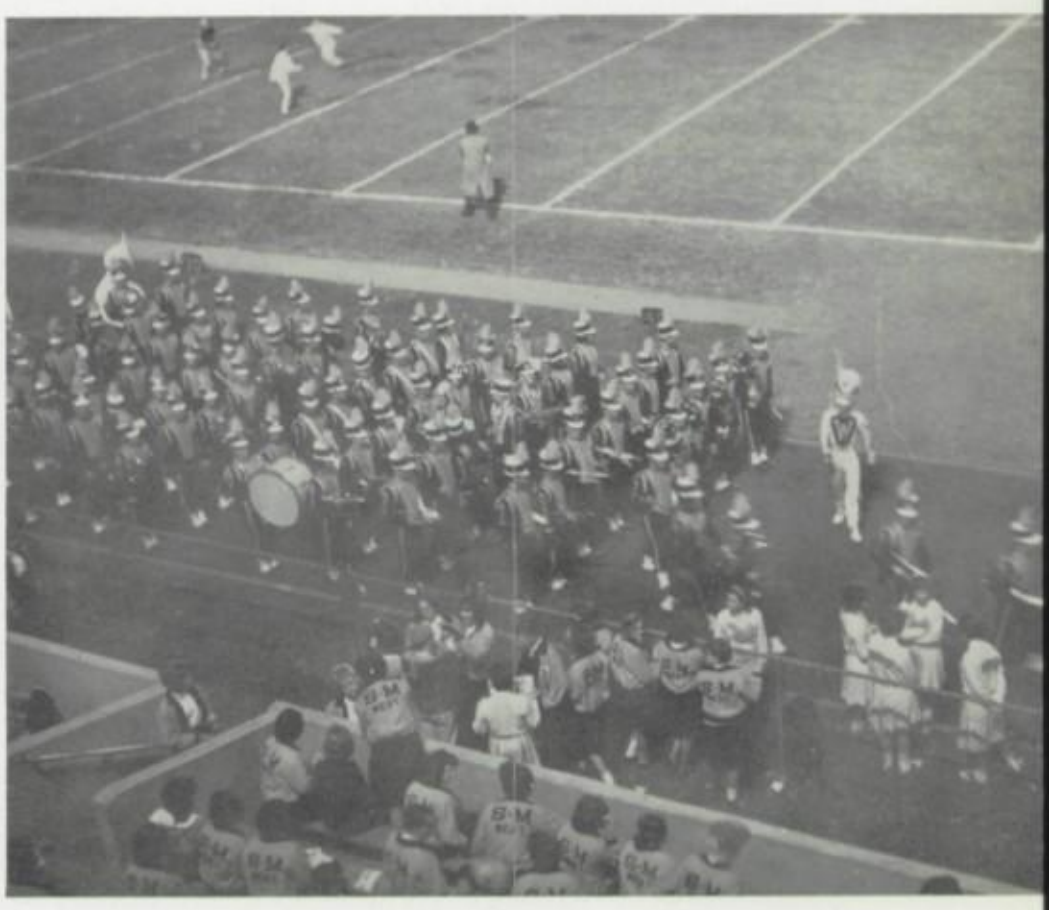
A-Band Marches To New Arrangements And New Places

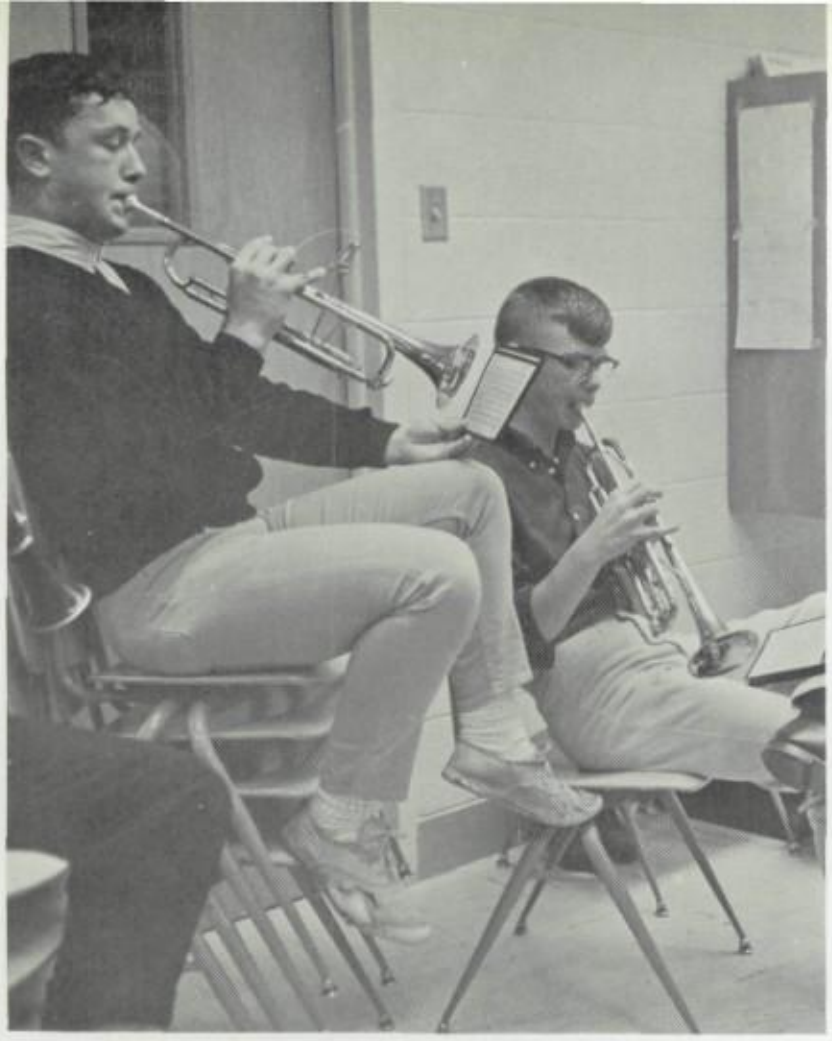
Often spending their fourth hour period marching in mist and mud, West's A-band, led by drum majors Bob Woodward and Carl McCaffree, went to extremes to attain perfection for an upcoming halftime routine. The task of coordinating these one hundred and twenty pairs of feet went to Shawnee Misssion West's expert band director, Mr. David Circle.

The A-band gained admiration as they executed a wonderful performance at the Kansas City Chiefs' November 8 game and marched brilliantly in the American Royal, Overland Park, and Prairie Village parades and K.U. Band Day. In Spring district contests, West A-band members brought back high honors.

On Fridays the band struck up gay morning concerts on the bridge and drummed their way to Pep Club meetings. The stimulating notes of the Viking Fight Song, shrill cry of the battle horns, and often sad notes of the "Alma Mater" carried West backers through both victory and defeat.



Pep Club members prepare for the game while West's cheerleaders' confer privately and the band marches off the track.



Precariously perched, John Galichia and John Hancock try to solve the problem of reading music around their trumpets.

B-Band Rouses School Spirit And Music Appreciation

Fifty-five students, meeting alternately during seventh hour, comprised Shawnee Mission West's B-Band. Playing instruments that included trumpets, coronets, flutes, baritones and a sousaphone, these musicians rehearsed various musical pieces under the direction of Mr. David E. Circle.

The Sophomore B-Band also elected officers to aid the efficiency of the class. President Doug Kimball had the assistance of vice-president Sam Price and secretary Greg Erhardt in presiding over the band. The president also directed the group when Mr. Circle was not present. Two librarians, Brooks Wright and Kim Liu, had the duty of distributing the sheet music to each person's music stand before class began, and taking care of it at other times.

Playing such marches as "Halleujah" and "Colonial March," the Sophomore B-Band assisted in school affairs throughout the year by boosting West's basketball team to victory by playing at their games. The band also performed before school assemblies, including their appearance at the Spring Concert.

West's Orchestra Adds Melodious Polish To School Life

While enthusiastically beating on the tympani, Fred Potter also releases spirit for beating the Washington Wildcats.

In a huge, specially-designed room surrounded by a cluster of offices and practice rooms, West's orchestra met first hour this year under the supervision of Mr. David Circle. With forty-nine members, it was larger than both East's and North's orchestras. At the beginning of the year West had to borrow instruments from Shawnee Misssion East to accommodate all of its musicians.

Besides being large, this year's orchestra was one of the area's finest. West's showing in the district's spring contests, added to the fact that four members also belonged to the Kansas City Youth Symphony, proved this to be true.

The orchestra performed a number of services for the students. They participated in West's public concerts in December and in the spring. They played in assemblies at West and at several surrounding junior highs. Many members augmented the excellent orchestration of the operetta, Sound of Music.

As Mr. Circle points out proudly, "There was just one thing that made this orchestra different from past ones West has had. It was better!"

Vocalists Study Proper

Both vocal exercises, consisting of "Me-he-wah-ha-me," and physical exercises prepared Mr. Oldham's choral groups for later pieces of secular, spiritual, or show music. Girls' Choir, Girls' Glee, and Mixed Chorus presented various numbers at the Christmas Assembly and, later in the spring, collaborated with all music departments to present the Spring Concert. They also visited churches in the area to sing spiritual pieces for the services.

Along with singing and entertainment, students studied music theory and developed a finer appreciation for music. At the District Contest in the spring, soloists and smaller groups, including the mixed ensembles and girls' sextets, performed. Those receiving a "I" at the District Contest went on to compete in the State Contest.

A year of strengthening lungs and vocal cords provided music students with valuable training and experience for future hopes of making A Cappella choir.

Rehearse Musical Artistry

Strains of "Brazilian Psalm," "Sand In My Shoes," and "I Hear A Voice A-Prayin' " filled the fine arts wing second hour as the A Cappella Choir rehearsed and perfected its numbers. The seventy-eight select voices, directed by Mr. William Oldham, began their yearly performances by presenting concerts of religious music at several area churches, including Asbury Methodist Church. On its winter agenda was the Choir's Christmas concert for the Parent-Teacher Club. The Choir also presented a secular music concert in addition to singing at the Spring Concert. Completing its musical season, the A Cappella Choir sang at the 1965 baccalaureate and graduation exercises.

Chosen from the A Cappella Choir were the thirty-six members of Chorale. Also under the leadership of Mr. Oldham, this group represented West's musical talents at many concerts during the year, including performances at Back-To-School Night, and at the Kansas State Teachers' Convention on November 6.

Vikings Choose THE SOUND

The halls were alive with The Sound of Music as West's music and drama departments presented the famous Rodgers and Hammerstein musical. Taking place in Austria in 1938, 'The Sound of Music: is the true story of the Von Trapp Family. After being told that she must leave the Abby until September, Maria (Diane Cooper) takes a position as a governess for Captain Von Trapp's (Craig Turner) seven children. From this, the musical unwinds as a story of love and defiance.

Directed by Mr. William Oldham, the cast spent 11 weeks of rehearsals to prepare for the three night showing on March 11, 12, and 13. The technical crews, supervised by Mr. Bill Coplin, built flats, painted scrims, collected props, and planned the lighting. Under Mr. David Circle, instrumental instructor, the operetta orchestra spent many evenings after school rehearsing the musical score. These preparations, plus costume making and the nuns' chorus rehearsals, kept over 150 Vikings preparing for the production.

"Doe, a deer, a female deer . . . ." Arriving at the Von Trapp villa, Maria (Diane Cooper) begins her role as the children's governess by teaching them how to sing.

The Drama Department

Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize winning play, "Our Town," first opened in New York on February 4, 1938, and first opened in the S.M. West auditorium, on November 20, 1964. Both audiences, though twenty-six years apart, felt the tragedy and consolations of their limited lives in this play. The story is set in a small town, Grover's Corners, N.H., typical of any town, even our town and portrays the characteristic emotions of life as one journeys from birth, through life and love, to death.

Seven weeks of acting rehearsal went into the producing of the play. 279 persons tried out while only 30 made the final cast. Crews to design costumes, make-up, and lighting, were assembled from the drama classes. A sound track, borrowed from the Jewish Community Center, created the 5:10 whistle, while pews for the wedding came from local churches. Instead of setting the mood with stage props, crews accentuated the use of lights. Lights, pantomime, and the audience's imagination established the scene.

"I hate George, I hate him," declared Emily Webb (Linda Kimmel) before marrying George (Lance Brockman).

Humor Takes The Stage As

Miss Girard (Bonnie Gossett) demands Ensign Pulver (Mike Blasberg) to take her back to the island.

To accommodate the tremendous abundance of male talent at Shawnee Mission West, Mr. Coplin's drama department utilized the twenty-three male parts of early spring production of Mr. Roberts. The play contained only one girl's part, Miss Girard or Red Label, played by Bonnie Gossett.

Commander of a U. S. navy ship in the Pacific during World War II, the tyrannical captain (Jerry Tilzer) oppressed everyone else aboard ship. Opposed to his obstinate ways was Lieutenant Roberts (Craig Turner), who made a daily habit of requesting transfer to a ship involved in active combat duty. However, to get the captain to grant liberties to the men, Mr. Roberts agreed to end his requests. The crew ultimately learned of the Lieutenant's sacrifice, and managed to get his request pushed through and approved.

While student director Terry Jones led the on-stage action, the tech crews had the task of locating twenty-three navy outfits and other necessary props.

The Captain (Jerry Tilzer) warns Mr. Roberts that he'd better be "through writin' letters."

SAGA Staffers Prepare

Jerry Schroeder finds that a bird's eye view is an interesting angle for Saga pictures.

Vague memories of the first day of school, reminiscences of the Christmas Formal and the Junior-Senior Prom, retrospection of a team victory — the Saga recorded these events and thoughts, becoming a memoir for the Viking year of 1964-65.

The editors of the Saga worked with the entire staff and Mr. Brown, sponsor, to plan and coordinate the yearbook. The publicity manager directed the fall sales campaign with a political theme.

The pictures in the yearbook were taken by the photography staff and captioned by the literary staff. Copy blocks were written by the literary and sports staffs. The treasurer managed all financial dealings.

The production staff informed photographers of picture appointments. Ads were sold to local merchants by the business staff to acquire the funds necessary for a top-notch yearbook.

The art staff planned the layout for the annual and designed opening, division, and closing pages, contributing an aesthetic touch to the '65 Saga.

Create A First-Rate SAGA

Notwithstanding the diversity in duties of the separate staffs, the complete Saga crew worked as an entity to produce a yearbook that would meet the high standards of the anticipant Viking clan. Photographers snapped and shot, artists sketched and schemed, and editors supervised and stewed, but everyone served and synchronized. The seniors of the corps devised the central theme for the yearbook and jointly decided such issues as cover design and color placement. They also made frequent trips to the printers to proofread copy and make final adjustments.

"Vote Saga" became the campaign slogan of all Saga-staffers in the fall as the then-unwritten story of a then-unfinished year was sold to two thousand trusting Vikings. A mock Presidential election was staged in harmony with the nation's political race. Everyone who purchased a Saga had the privilege of voting for the candidate of his choice, and those who voted for the winner were eligible to win a free yearbook. Intercom announcements, colorful posters and campaign hats reminded Vikings to buy a Saga.

Relate The Viking Story

Hidden in Room 12 for most of the week, Journalism II students emerged on Friday as welcome visitors to seventh hour classes. The Epics they brought with them were the results of a hectic week of selling ads, interviewing, taking photographs, and overcoming the difficulties of layouts and copy-fitting.

Following thorough preparation in Journalism I classes, Bill Kissell, managing editor; Beth Andersen, editor-in-chief; and Cindy Lingle, business manager; skillfully undertook the responsibilities of creating the weekly newspaper. An entirely new staff, headed by Keith McDaniel, managing editor; Diane Hoagland, editor-in-chief; and Diane Ramos, business manager; continued Epic production during the second semester.

In thirty yearly editions, the Epic kept Vikings aware of coming school dances, drama productions, gave sports enthusiasts statistics of the latest varsity encounters, and supplied editorials with a thought provoking analysis of school problems.

West's Journalists Are Honored In Quill And Scroll

Originality, leadership, and writing skill were rewarded at the annual Quill and Scroll ceremony in April, held at Shawnee Mission East. The observance included a dinner, a noted speaker, and the lighting of candles representing the virtues essential for good journalism: Initiative, Truth, Loyalty, Enlightenment, Opportunity, Friendship, and Leadership.

As seniors on the Saga and Epic staffs became initiates in the organization, they received gold pins and pledged their devotion to the ideals of journalism. An academic standing in the upper one-fourth of the class and the recommendation of the staff advisor were prerequisites for membership.

The honorary society of Quill and Scroll was organized in 1926 by a group of high school advisors, and today includes more than 7,500 chapters throughout the world. The Quill symbolizes the meticulous care which must be exerted to turn thoughts into proper language; the Scroll represents the permanent quality of good writing.

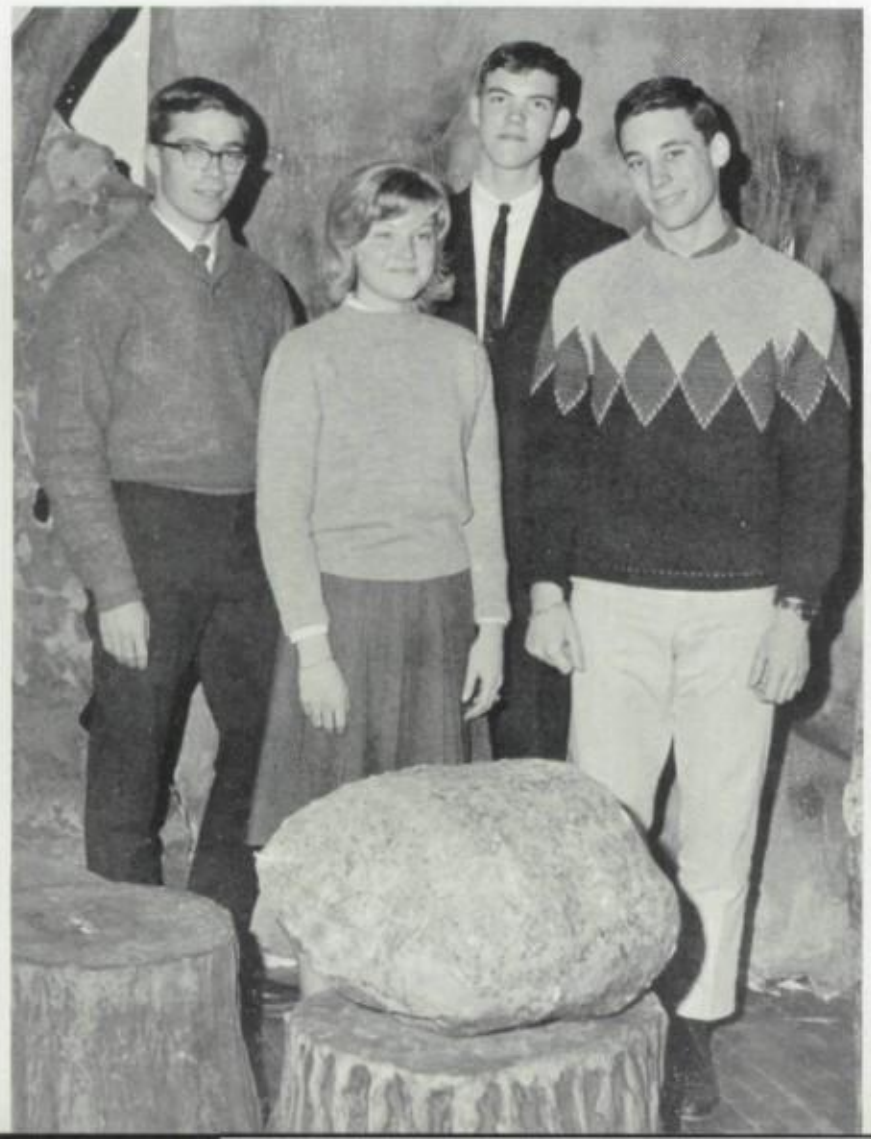
N.H.S. Initiates Members, Forms Service Committees

N.H.S. Officers—Mark Jorgensen, president; Bill Hawkins, vice president; Tom Langer, treasurer; Barb Schiller, secretary.



Exemplifying qualities of scholastic achievement, constructive leadership, purposeful service, and worthy character, members of the National Honor Society were elected by West's faculty. Ten percent of the senior class and five percent of the junior class were singled-out by second-year N.H.S. members in an all-school assembly.

N.H.S. officers, Mark Jorgensen, president; Bill Hawkins, vice-president; Barb Schiller, secretary; and Tom Langer, treasurer; organized the candlelight initiation ceremony and annual N.H.S. picnic.

For the first time at West, seniors in the National Honor Society contributed their services to Vikings through two special committees. Sophomore committees informed lower classmen of the qualifications for N.H.S. membership; junior committees told junior homerooms about college scholarships. In this way, second-year members urged their prospective successors to develop the qualities prized by the National Honor Society.

Topic During Tournaments

Amid the flurry of football and basketball seasons, Shawnee Mission West gained stature as a debating school with a second place in District and a fourth place showing at State. S-M West debaters also concluded the season with fifteen trophies in their possession, coming from tournaments at Salina, Pittsburg, Topeka, Manhattan, and other Kansas towns.

Debaters worked through the summer and into the debating season by researching the national high school topic: Resolved, That Nuclear Weapons Should Be Controlled by an International Organization. Every team compiled evidence to debate the affirmative and negative side of the question and prepared further material for Cross-Exam debate.

Debaters earned debate points, entitling them to join the National Forensic League. Officers of the West chapter were: Randy Marshall, president; Cindy Lingle, vice president; Beth Anderson, secretary; Kay Kracht, recording secretary.

Orators Try For Excellence At Kansas Speech Tournaments

Looking skyward for inspiration, John Pearse speaks a dramatic line as Steve Johnson, his duet acting partner, meditates.

Either through speech and drama classes, or individual initiative, Shawnee Mission West students attended speech tournaments held in Kansas and Missouri. Mr. Hayes, Mrs. Shipley, and Mr. Coplin supervised tryouts after school for prospective speech contestants, who selected or wrote their own material.

The tournaments that West speakers attended included those at Emporia, Shawnee Heights of Topeka, and the University of Missouri at Kansas City. Orators vied for a first division rating that would qualify to send them to the District speech contests conducted in Emporia. At District, they again strove for a "one" rating to qualify for State contests.

Events at speech contests ranged from humorous readings to dramatic interpretation of poetry. Some students chose oration, an event in which the speaker must write and deliver a ten minute speech on subjects that included capital punishment, integration, and foreign policy. Other events included oral interpretation of prose, dramatic reading, duet acting, extemporaneous speaking, and informative speeches.

Music Students Strive For A "1" Rating At Contest

Tom Erickson, Preston Doudna, Judy Verburg, and Martha Kittrell prepare arrangement for the music contest.

This year one of the first signs of spring was some crowding in the vocal and instrumental practice rooms where determined musicians were preparing for the spring music contests. Spending weeks in practice, students strove to succeed in the local elimination, which included only Vikings. Successful contenders at the local level went to the district contest at Kansas University on April 4. Musicians who performed well "at district" qualified for the culminating state contest, held April 24 at Emporia.

Rather than try to compete with other contestants, the musicians endeavored to make their own performance worthy of a "one" rating, as the object of the contests is not competition, but recognition of all youth who have developed their musical talents admirably. Those receiving "ones" at district went to state; those who got "ones" at State were awarded gold medals for their excellence.

In nearly all of the numerous categories of contestants, West representatives filled the quotas with every describable type of soloist and ensemble.

As the district music contest approaches, Sally Carr, Frances Williams, Linda Barker Saundra Mosher, Juanita Dortch, and Suzanne Zaffle perfect their sextet to earn a "1" rating.

Boys' And Girls' Staters Re-enact Government At K. U.

Carefully selected high school students from all over the state of Kansas attended a week-long replica of a state's government last summer under the auspices of the American Legion. Attending the University of Kansas campus as representatives to Boys' State from West were Steve Hedtke, Bob Daly, Doug Douville, Gary Olbrich, Bill Shull, Craig Crago, Dave Smith, Doug Brahl, and Jim Kegerreis. The representative to Girls' State was Marcia McMullen.

Staters were divided into two political groups and held their own elections after vigorous individual campaigns. Dormitories were split into counties, cities, and wards. Individual officers from each "locality" played important roles in the mock government. Everyone held a post, whether it was sheriff or governor. Steve Hedtke, as Insurance Commissioner, landed the most important position held by a Viking.

Besides re-enacting the legislative procedures, Boys' Staters drilled in afternoon marches and did calisthenics every morning. Instead of calisthenics, Girls' Staters mastered folk song singing.

Mr. Selves escorts 1962 Homecoming Queen Susan West and 1963 Queen Sharon Gravino to the Queen's throne.

Joyful tears fall from the eyes of Queen Cathie Ulrich and attendants Ginger Barr and Gale Anderson.

Football Loss Assuaged By Elegant Homecoming

Orange, yellow, and gold marked the theme of West's 1964 Homecoming—autumn leaves. After a fighting half against Topeka Central, 1963 Homecoming Queen Sharon Gravino crowned Cathie Ulrich 1964 Homecoming Queen. Cathie and her attendants, Ginger Barr and Gale Anderson, were presented with chrysanthmum bouquets, while a congratulatory Pep Club applauded their choice for Queen. While the band played "Thank Heaven for Little Girls", Cathie, Ginger, and Gale were escorted to their box to watch the remainder of the game.

The following night close to 400 couples, including many alumni, danced to the music of the Continentals at the Homecoming Dance. At ten o'clock a hush fell over the crowd as Cathie, Ginger, and Gale were presented to the school. Mr. Selves presented each girl with a white football, individually signed by the football team members. With the end of the Homecoming festivities, Cathie Ulrich officially began her reign over the 1964 football season.

Cathie Ulrich Reigns As West's 1964 Homecoming Queen

A red Mustang convertible started to circle the football field, choruses of Autumn Leaves filled the air, and fifteen lovely girls wearing white brocade formals and corsages of gold mums shivered in the October night's chill. Weeks of anticipation and preparation past, it was Homecoming Night. Attending were scores of alumni, including the previous Homecoming queens, Susan West, 1962, and Sharon Gravino, 1963.

Homecoming committeemen rushed onto the field, hurriedly assembled the coronation platform, and unrolled the orange carpet leading to it. Bearing the crowns and chrysanthemum bouquets that awaited for the queen and her attendants, the rest of the court lined up along the royal carpet. Amid tense quiet, the finalists' float, a rural scene with a rustic footbridge and gold-leafed tree, reached its destination. "Second Attendant," exclaimed Mr. Oldham, "Gale Anderson; First Attendant, Ginger Barr; and 1964 Homecoming Queen, Cathie Ulrich." As many resumed breathing, West's new queen led her court to their reserved box.

The 1963 Homecoming Queen, Sharon Gravino, relinquishes her throne by giving Cathie Ulrich the Queen's tiara.

Miss Kim Sullivan

Basketball Sweetheart

Crowns Are West's Valentines To The 1965 Sweethearts

Even as the players bounded off the basketball court, a red-skirted platform was beginning to take shape in the corner of West's gymnasium. Sweetheart committeemen erected three scarlet plush hearts behind three scarlet-cushioned chairs and stretched a vivid royal carpet to the gym's opposite corner. With eyes focused on the gym's west door, Vikings and visiting Wyandotte Bulldogs quieted, awaiting the announcement of West's 1965 Basketball Sweetheart.

The emcee, having welcomed the crowd, introduced the fifteen girls, who wore winter suits in gay solids and checks with white carnation corsages. Their escorts accompanied them to positions lining the carpeted approach to the platform. Finally the long-anticipated announcements came. Lynn Beidleman took her place in front of one of the giant hearts as Second Attendant; Nancy Bolton took hers as First Attendant; and finally, Kim Sullivan, West's Sweetheart in bright red, walked down the carpet to stand before the biggest of the hearts. As cameras flashed, each girl received her crown, her bouquet, and glad applause.

SAGA Royalty Is Crowned Amid White And Yellow Roses

The '65 Saga Staff nominated eighteen Senior girls for Saga Queen to reign over the Senior Farewell Dance on May 15. These girls: Beth Andersen, Janet Boyer, Nanci Jo Brown, Barb Elliott, Pat Grayson, Shirley Gossett, Linda Henry, Diann Hickman, Barb Schiller, Mary Lee Tussey, Donna Hollis, Carol Johnson, Marcia McMullen, Regena Reynolds, Jan Sanders, Helen Sandy, Suzanne Sandlin, and Diana Shank were chosen on the basis of their contributions, extracurricular activities, personalities, grade averages, leadership abilities, and any other special talents dedicated to the purposes of West in '65.

These eighteen girls were introduced in a special assembly by Bob Daly and the Saga Art Staff presented a display of their portraits surrounded by sprigs of spring flowers in the showcase, prior to the time the students made their decisions by voting.

To the music of "Everything's Coming up Roses," the three finalists were presented with bouquets of roses and seated on their thrones. Jan Sanders was crowned Queen, with Diann Hickman and Diana Shank as first and second attendants.

Clubs Promote Hobbies,

For the first time in Shawnee Mission West's history, students attended clubs on Wednesdays, in addition to Tuesdays and Thursdays. Due to the increase of West's enrollment, class assemblies were presented during activity period while the other classes attended clubs. In all three days, more than one hundred and five clubs were active.

Various clubs offered wide selections of activities to its members. Model airplane enthusiasts discussed, constructed, and actually flew their own miniature aircraft. For the sports-minded individual, badminton, basketball, and football clubs offered recreation. For people who enjoyed a battle of wits, the chess and bridge clubs gave members an opportunity to participate in rigorous mental exercise. Cheerleaders practiced earnestly on new cheers in their club periods, while other girls marched and drilled. Ornithology participants observed bird life first hand while knitting enthusiasts wove sweaters and mittens.

Training Good Teachers Is F.T.A.'s Main Objective

Tripling its former membership, the Shawnee Mission West Future Teachers Club boasted nearly one hundred members this year. Due to the growth, the club split into three separate ones.

Each member of Mr. Adkins' group belonged either to the social or the project committee. These bodies planned social events and charity projects for the club. This F. T .A.'s main distinction was that of being the only one at West with 100 per cent girls.

Guest speakers frequently gave talks for Mr. Buller's club. College representatives, district personnel managers, and teachers themselves related their experiences with teachers and teaching to curious pupils.

The "Toys for Tots" program, an orphanage party, similar helpful services and semimonthly speakers occupied Mrs. McMichael's F. T. A.

An important moment for all three F. T. A.'s was the spring honors and awards assembly when ambitious members received pins for assistance to teachers.

The Future Teachers Club sees good humor in warnings of possible pupil problems and test troubles.

Art Service Club Raises Money Through Artwork

The year's first task for West's industrious Art Service Club proved to be constructing posters to publicize themselves. This initial utilization of the club's forty-two-members' artistic skills prompted many later requests for signs, posters, placecards, and other commercial art work from area organizations.

Melody Jenkins, Art Service Club president; Carol Freeman, vice-president; Kathy Teeple, secretary; and Nancy Bolton, treasurer, found many of their club's jobs to be directly beneficial to West. Again the club made the golden Vikings pennants and stenciled the handsome covers of the Student Congress handbooks. During the annual exchange carnival, Art Service Club members operated a booth and drew Vikings' silhouettes.

Individuals in the club received points for projects they had completed, and at the year's end members received pins for their accomplishments. Also at this time the Art Service Club presented to the school a painting by an outstanding area artist.

"People" Is Object Of Study For Two West Clubs

Barb Whitaker seeks recognition from Margie Walker to comment in a discussion of racial prejudices.

Gaining a richer understanding of people was the primary goal of both the People-to-People Club and the Human Relations Club. Vikings in People-to-People emphasized the development of international appreciation and friendship while Human Relations Club members explored some of the causes and results of prejudice, both racial and religious.

Universally-minded Vikings communicated with a classroom in Mexico through the Information Exchange Program. Many also exchanged experiences with pen pals contracted through the Letter Exchange Plan.

Guest speakers and group discussion promoted independent analysis of racism and religious intolerance for West's Human Relations Club. The group acquired further insight into the imbroglio of prejudice by way of films provided by the Kansas Commission on Civil Rights. Many shared in a meaningful intergroup experience by working with the Human Relations Youth Assembly of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

With three different clubs, West's Y-Teens chapter strove to be an active segment in the international organization of the YWCA. The officers of the club—Carol Yokum, president; Doris Dougan, vice president; Patsy Irwin, treasurer; and Judy Mullins, secretary—planned its activities with an underlying theme of service and religion. Each individual club was responsible for devotions to begin each meeting, while social service chairmen, Carol Freeman and Karen McAllister, planned money-making and service projects.

Among the service projects the clubs did were the scrapbooks, net fish with soap inside and crayon aprons, all to be given to children in surrounding hospitals. Y-Teens also took over the selling of West's pencils for another fund-raising project. Another project was a chili feed in December, held after the group had gone Christmas caroling. The club also heard talks from area ministers and girls from area Colleges, all the while learning how to live active, serviceful lives.

Vikings Sharpen Skills In Chess And Bridge Tourneys

Outstanding from the many clubs during West's activity periods were the chess and bridge clubs. Five different clubs, sponsored by three teachers, accommodated the wants of student bridge fanciers. Seven West teachers sponsored eight different clubs for chess players. Appropriately, many sponsors of chess clubs were instructors of mathematics and science.

Bridge clubs ranged from sessions held solely for beginners, to gatherings for advanced bridge players. In the novice's bridge clubs, newcomers to the game spent the first few weeks learning the fundamental plays of bridge and their variations. Then the format became similar to the advanced bridge clubs, and players set up their own foursomes and began playing on their own.

Chess players, showing their enthusiasm by playing their game at lunch, had more clubs to their credit than any other group. Strategic moves were studied, and new ones experimented with. Rooks, Queens, Pawns, and Knights moved carefully around the board while their controllers plotted strategy.

Student Congress Committee Presents Talent Assembly

Jim Sweeney and the Monkeymen, the Triple Trio, and the Villagers from Shawnee Mission East and Drummer Ken Mairs, folk singer Gina Bikales, and a sixteen-piece swing band from Shawnee Mission North filled West's auditorium with gay notes during the March District Talent Show at West.

Donna Holmes and her Assemblies and Activities Committee of the Student Congress spent much of the year in preparation not only for this traditional exchange of talent between the Shawnee Mission high schools but also for West's own talent show on April 13, 14, and 15. A medley of acts, including the Vicounts dance band, a colorful "pink fan dance," Marcia McMullen's humorous reading, Sue Laningham's toe tap dance, a Senior Girls' Chorus line, folk singers Bill Brown, Carl McCaffree, and Scott Curtis, and Steve DeMasters' band all proved to be very entertaining to the Vikings in attendance. Cast members presented a scene from Mr. Roberts.

The Assemblies and Activites committee with assistance from the faculty, chose the acts for the West Talent Show.

Entertaining Education

An entertaining interlude in the midst of a busy school week, West's assembly programs were enhanced by their wide variety of subjects. Bert Kamin, a Sunflower League basketball referee, spoke to Viking fans on sportsmanship's importance at games. Jim Post, chaplain of the Kansas State Penitentiary, gave a talk at the year's first all-school assembly to discourage any potential members of his congregation. Sharing his experiences on the Kansas State Highway Patrol, Trooper Kirkendoll showed slides illustrating the main causes of accidents.

Talent from the student body provided a wealthy source of assembly programs. From the music department came several presentations, among them concerts by West's Vikounts and celebrated drum ensemble in addition to those by the band, orchestra, and A capella Choir. Assemblies by debaters, Boys' and Girls' State representatives, and the exchange students drew from other realms of school life. Films and visiting groups, such as musicians from S.M. East and Kansas University, added to the variety.

Accentuating the rapid rhythm, Mr. Circle conducts the Concert Band's performance of Emperata Overture.

These words, the motto of the American Field Service, were personified by Amira Mohammed Shanawany of Egypt and Carl Gerden of Sweden.

Enchanted by Pep Club's spirit and awed by Americans' gum-chewing habits, Carl found both contrasts and correspondences between this nation and Sweden. His Overland Park family, the Guy V. Carl, who understands seven languages andspeaks four, participated in Our Town and was a member of the Math Club, Pep Club, and Student Congress.

Also a member of the Pep Club and Student Congress, Amira found interest in West's Astronomy Club. Originally from Cairo, she resided with Mrs. J. W. Greene, President of the Shawnee Mission West chapter of the American Field Service.

The Student Congress Honors Faculty With A Tea

In appreciation of their assistance with student projects throughout the year, the Student Congress honored the faculty on February 11 with a tea. Rose-colored punch, cake topped with candy hearts and a lovely floral centerpiece furthered the Valentine's Day theme. Cindy Lingle, Barb Elliot, Pam Ransdell, Diana Shank, Wanda Milliren, Patty Lilliston, Julie Nothdruft, Susan Mall, and Shirley Carson were Student Congress hostesses at the tea.

The tea provided West's teaching staff with one of its few chances to meet together informally. During the afternoon tea in the faculty dining room, teachers departed from their usually busy schedules to speak with many of the student teachers visiting Shawnee Mission West from area colleges.

Although the February 11 tea was the first such undertaking by the Student Congress, Pat Grayson and Suzanne Sandlin, who were in charge of planning the tea, expressed, along with the faculty, the wish that the tea would become an annual event.

Students Assume Positions As Administrators And Teachers

On Student Government Day the students of S.M. West not only organized classroom activities through the various educational wings in the building, but also handled book and money problems in the library, answered busy phones and intercoms in the office, counseled disciplinary problems in the counselors' offices, heard complaints and excuses in the nurse's office and governed the complete student body by taking up the responsibilities of vice principals and principal. Gary Olbrich, the student body president, acted as principal while other aspiring students wrote letters of application for such positions as vice principal, counselor, nurse, janitor, and classroom teacher. The whole transaction was organized by the Student Congress Executive Committee.

Students, as they took on these roles of teaching their fellow Vikings for just one day, were challenged by the complex situations so efficiently carried out by the regular faculty and personnel during those 179 other days of the school year. Also, many educational leaders of tomorrow had an opportunity to sample their future careers.

Fantastic And Tromp Toes

On September 26th, the Vikings assembled on the bridge for three hours of dancing and amiable conversation at this year's first dance, the Stag Dance. Requiring no dates, this party was especially designed to acquaint September's crowd of new Vikings with the returning juniors and seniors.

Santa Claus faces, dangling from the cafeteria ceiling, announced West's long-anticipated Christmas semi-formal. Arriving party-goers found the gym decked with paper peppermint canes to carry out the dance's Candyland theme. From their gay outpost in the midst of the dancers, the Royals brightened the evening with a repertoire of lively dance tunes.

The popular mixers offered opportunities for informal celebration following some of West's basketball games. Laughingly referred to as a "mix-up," the first mixer came after the exciting four-overtime game with arch-rival Shawnee Mission East.

Completing the party calendar on May 15 was the Senior Farewell Dance. Here all three classes congregated on the bridge to honor the graduating seniors.

The Vikings of Shawnee Mission West began the 1964 gridiron season by beating the Olathe Eagles 12-0. Featuring a solid running attack, SMW rushed for 232 yards. During the third period, senior fullback Terry West dove into the end zone for his second touchdown of the contest. The fourth quarter found the West defense dominating as the Eagles' march was stopped on the Viking five yard line.

Encountering Turner High School the following week, West captured its second victory of the season. Speedy wingback Keith Irby, by scoring twenty-one points within a five minute span sparked a strong offensive showing. Stout defensive action provided three scoring opportunities in the first quarter. The Vike gridsters added fourteen points in the second half, six of which came on a sixty-six yard Paul Loving to Keith Irby pass play. Allen Sander added every extra point as Shawnee Mission West vanquished Turner 35-14.

But Lose To Topeka Central

Playing its first league contest of the season, against S-M North, West extended its winning streak to three games. The Indians jumped to a 6-0 lead in the opening period after a West fumble. The Vikings rebounded late in the second quarter after a fine punt return by Steve Bass. Allen Sander booted the extra point; West led 7-6. In the second half, North took advantage of an intercepted pass, pushing over their second touchdown. As Scott Ulrich gained the needed yardage, West then ground out the leading score. In the final quarter the Vikings successfully stopped an Indian aerial advance for a 14-12 victory.

Before a homecoming crowd, the Vike squad met the Topeka Trojans. Plagued by fumbles, West was stopped 27-0 in the first three periods by an aroused Trojan eleven. With only twelve minutes left in the game, the Vikings began their scoring. West scored on a double reverse, a 93 yard pass play, and a plunge, after an interception by defensive halfback Tom Baker. The last quarter surge was not enough, however, as West fell by a touchdown 27-20 to Topeka.

Vikes Fall To Topeka West For Third Loss By One TD

A Viking squad plagued by injuries dropped into the Sunflower League cellar after suffering a 13-7 defeat at the hands of the Washington Wildcats. It was the Vikings' second loss in three league starts. Trailing the Wildcats by two touchdowns at the half, West became air-minded, launching a 150 yard passing attack, setting up the lone tally.

Hampered by mistakes, the Vikings stumbled 13-7 in a non-conference clash with the Raytown South Cardinals. West tied the score with ten minutes left on the clock and was threatening in the closing seconds when Raytown intercepted a Viking aerial and raced 65 yards for the decisive touchdown.

Succumbing to an overpowering Charger offense during the closing periods, the Vikings toppled 14-7 to Topeka West. After a scoreless first half in which the gridmen held the opposition to a lone first down, Topeka broke into the scoring column with one second remaining in the third quarter. Having difficulty cracking a stout defense, a pass from Paul Loving to Keith Irby gave West the lone touchdown.

This extra point was blocked by an alert Olathe secondary but West went on to beat the Eagles 12-0.

Outlast West For Wins

West next clashed with the S-M East Lancers. East scored in the opening minutes of play and then capitalized on a Viking fumble, racing into the end zone for a second score. East led at half time 14-0. The Lancers stiffled the West shotgun pass offense by continually intercepting passes. After the half time festivities the Viking gridsters came to life, scoring by way of the airways. A bad snap from center foiled the extra point attempt. During the second half the black and gold line stiffened and held the Lancers twice near the goal line. The S-M West offense could never get moving as East beat West 14-6.

For the final game of the season the Vikings encountered Wyandotte High School. Fighting for a share of the league crown, the Bulldogs outplayed the Vikings for a 21-7 victory. The tough SMW defensive line managed to hold the Bulldogs to only fifty-seven yards rushing. However, the Wyandotte offense went airborne to score three touchdowns. West's lone score came on a twenty-eight yard run by halfback Roy McDonald.

Taking Third In Region

Reaching new peaks of success, the 1964 Shawnee Mission West Cross-Country team became the first squad of Viking harriers to qualify for the state meet. In the first encounter of the season, West took second place in the S-M North-Washington Triangular. The next week, the two-milers captured first place in a meet with S-M East and Washington. At the Wichita Invitational, the Vikings placed fifth in a field of nineteen teams and again took fifth among fifteen competitors entered in the Shawnee Mission Invitational. Hosting the S-M Triangular, the thinclads emerged in second place, 14 points ahead of the East Lancers. Improving by two places over last season, West took an important and impressive stride toward the state meet by tying for third with S-M East in the traditionally tough Sunflower League meet.

The Viking harriers blazed their way into third place at the regional meet. Capturing tenth place individually, cross-country ace Bob Robb led the squad to seventh place in the State Meet.

Pulling away from pursuing runners, Bob Anderson strides easily over West's rolling cross-country course.

West Starts Fast By Conquering North, NKC, And Topeka

With Greg Henry, Gary Shank, Alan Slater, Steve Robinson, and Doug Jackson as the Varsity starters, S-M West opened the basketball season with a 55-44 conquest of the North Indians. The Vikings claimed an eleven point halftime edge and extended it to sixteen midway in the third period. North battled back, but West applied the finishing touch in the form of a superb stall which saved the victory.

Meeting the Hornets of North Kansas City, West found little opposition while rolling to a 59-40 win behind Doug Jackson's twenty-two points. In its next clash the Viking squad encountered the Topeka High Trojans. Recovering from a 13-10 spread at the end of the first quarter, the Vike squad forged ahead for a 37-31 halftime lead. With Greg Henry's leadership West gained a sixteen point lead in the third quarter, but a two minute stall was needed to save a 58-56 West victory. At Wyandotte, West led during the opening minutes but failed to stop the talents of Lucius Allen as West fell 75-49.

Vikes Find Trouble In Four Overtime Match With East

West's Doug Jackson and Gary Shank battle for an important rebound against S-M North's Bob Pusey.

Traveling to Newton during the Christmas holidays, the Viking basketball squad posted a solid first-round victory in the Newton Tournament, beating Moundridge by a score of 64-55. In the second round, West fell victim to Newton to the tune of 49-41. Stumbling 69-54 to Augusta in the final match, the cagers grabbed fourth place.

The Lancers of S-M East managed to outlast the Vikings in a four overtime thriller. Trailing by four points at the half, West bounded back to tie 60-60 in the second half. The ensuing battle lasted through four tense overtimes. The ax fell as two Lancer charities found their mark in the final 31 seconds of play.

The following week the Viking squad ventured to Sumner. West dominated the action for the first three periods before falling 68-56. The Vikings led by a six point margin only to fall in the final period. In the week prior to exams, West's cagers toppled 68-59 in their first encounter with Washington.

Recovering after a five game losing streak, West vanquished the North Indians 66-44. Although the Indians led throughout the first quarter, Doug Jackson put West ahead with a 35 foot jumper moments before the end of the first half. West never relinquished the lead as they outscored S-M North by twenty points in the final half for the victory.

West triumphed over the Topeka West Chargers the following night by a 51-42 margin. It was a team effort as Dave Dahl aided West's last quarter stall. At Topeka, the Vikings found themselves outplayed in all departments as West lost its chance at second place to the Trojans. Poor second and fourth quarters left West on the low end, 81-62.

The scoring abilities of Doug Jackson proved to be the downfall of the Wildcats of Washington High School as he scored thirty-one points, half of the Viking total. Washington never could enjoy the pleasures of a lead as West won 62-49. On the home court the Vike squad encountered and fell to title bound Wyandotte by twelve, 67-55. The scoring for the Vikings was equally distributed as three West players scored in double figures.

Vikings Tame Ward And

West dipped into the doldrums of despair, losing to Topeka West 57-43. The Vikings hit on only three of twenty-three attempts from the field in the first half. Recovering the following night, West smashed Lawrence 78-58 as five players were in double figures. Journeying to East, the Vikes fell to the Lancers in one overtime 78-67 but moved to Ward and trampled the Cyclones by an 83-59 margin.

Encountering Bishop Miege in the opening round of the Regionals, West used fine offensive and defensive hustle with an 18-4 West third quarter to gain the eventual triumph 61-43. After a full day's rest the Vikings, led by Alan Slater and his pinpoint shooting, managed to rip any hopes Argentine had by a 58-54 score. Rosedale proved to be the final victim of the Regional Tournament as West went ahead and stayed ahead for a 53-47 victory and championship.

Seniors Greg Henry, Gary Shank, Tad Ransford, Paul Loving, and Alan Slater played their last game for S-M West as the Vikings fell to league foe Wyandotte in the State Tournament by a 77-59 margin.

West's Best Swim Season

Reaching new heights of success, the S-M West swimming squad completed West's finest aquatic season. The team nearly reached the equilibrium point, gaining one less victory than defeat. The season began with three victories, one of which was the first conquest of S-M North, this by a margin of 48-47. Losing to Wyandotte, East, North, and twice to the two Topeka schools, West bounced back to trounce Liberty, and finished the season by capturing fifth in the league, edging both North and Washington. West succeeded in mastering all four of its non-conference foes.

The team was led by Coach Seymour and captains Ray Marsh and Eric Stine. Bob Hines was the sparkplug of the team, especially in setting records, as he broke Viking records in four free style events. Adding to the West laurels were record setters Ray Marsh and Bob Jardes. Also aiding the Viking cause in interscholastic swimming were Craig Wooldridge, Keith Irby, Mike Blasberg, and Keith Hudson as they were consistently top performers in West meets.

Viking Track Squad Encounters Weather And Opposition

S-M West Varsity Track Coach Cliff Abel looked forward to new found heights of success as he welcomed fifteen returning lettermen to the 1965 squad. Outstanding individuals were Keith Irby in the dashes, Jay Harvey and Rick Izard in the hurdles, Doug Jackson in the high jump, Roger Bruning and Dave Zimmerman in the half mile, Bob Jensen in the shot put, Mike Harp in the pole vault, and Jim Cassing in the broad jump.

Despite the early season disadvantages posed by wet and cold weather, the West squad was able to condition itself for the major season meets. The first action of the season came at the Kansas State Indoor Meet held on the Kansas State University campus in Manhattan. West sent fifteen participants and placed seventh in the state in overall standings with eight points in what proved to be only the beginning of a successful track season. West then encountered its traditional Sunflower rivals in the S-M Relays, the Washington Relays, and the League meet.

Golfers Use Finesse And Patience During Links Action

Aspiring to the finest golf season yet at Shawnee Mission West, Coach Larry Seymour returned five lettermen—Gary Johnson, Craig Wetzel, Roy Byrne, Randy Carter, and Jim Holland—to the Viking squad. These lettermen found it no easy task to make the team as many underclassmen fought for the limited numbers of positions.

Competing against teams of the highest caliber in the Sunflower Conference, West sought to upgrade its standing in the league. Birdies, pars, and even some bogies were carded in an effort to better all opposition. Evoking the maxim that practice makes perfect, the West golfers practiced drives, chips, and putting in an effort for betterment.

The team practiced at Brookridge Country Club and played in tournaments sponsored by various cities in Kansas, venturing as far as Topeka and Manhattan. The team pinpointed its practices towards the League and Regional tourneys held in Topeka at the Shawnee and Topeka Country Clubs. All hoped to climax the season at the State Tournament on the fabulous Prairie Dunes Country Club in Hutchinson.

Tennis Squad Takes Cold

Under the direction of Mr. McMurray, varsity tennis coach, the 1965 Shawnee Mission West tennis team set sights on a successful season. Taking to the courts in the blustery days of mid-March, the squad worked hard to perfect style and stroking. Volley after volley was fired and set after set was played; each made its contribution toward the added coordination and stamina of the squad.

Led by team captain Bob Barnes, the Viking net men began the season with high hopes of a respectable finish in the spring's competition. Seniors Doug Douville and Paul Loving helped to provide that necessary ingredient of experience as the entire squad looked forward to the team's first match against sister school Shawnee Mission North on April 6th at North. The Viking squad hosted its first meet of the early season on April 9th when it took on Sunflower league rival, Topeka West. The team also participated in the Sunflower league meet on April 30 and Regionals on May 7th.

Always Claimed A Victory

The Boys' and Girls' Intramural Committees of the Student Congress worked diligently to supply activity and opportunities for participation by West's student body in the field of athletics. Beginning the year with flag football, the boys, under the leadership of Al Sander, enjoyed the weekly sports contests. With the onset of winter, activities moved indoors as the spotlight shifted to basketball. Every Saturday morning the gymnasium reverberated with three solid hours of hard-fought basketball. The indoor sport of table tennis comprised still another phase of the Viking's agenda.

The girls, with the assistance of the Girls' Intramural Committee headed by Anita Holman, took part in volleyball as well as basketball after school on Mondays. Two games were played each evening. The girls' program was sponsored by Miss Thompson and by Mrs. MacGee. It can be stated by those who participated, that the intramural program at West had accomplished its purpose in reaching all interested Vikings.

Abilities During Winter

The wrestling program of Shawnee Mission West was organized through an intramural basis, pitting man against man. The boys competed in nine weight classes from under 95 to over 185 pounds as they strove to strengthen their bodies as well as to enjoy winter sports activity. Three times a week the aspirants of this program, under the supervision of Mr. Tanner, competed against one another. Those involved worked without athletic reward. A result of the wrestling program was the ability to be active in an individual and exciting intramural program.

A weight lifting and body building program, under the guidance of the football and track coaches, merged with the wrestling program to provide an interim between football and track. Designed for the betterment of the two sports, the activities included a series of exercises, weight lifting, and isometrics. The future benefit was not only for team sports but for individual achievement and physical advancement, as those involved strove towards a physical goal.

Sophomores Soon Become

The Class of '67, the eager underclassmen, after weeding out the old familiar faces and solving the maze of crowded halls and classrooms soon realized the difference in the past and the future - their future years at Shawnee Mission West. The officers of the sophomore class were Terry Schreier, president; Mary Welsh, vice president; Julie Northdurft, secretary and Sally Stonecipher, treasurer.

Bearing the many tools symbolic of those who seek knowledge, sophomores found themselves constructing geometric figures, anatomical sketches of biological species, short stories in the style of some favorite author, and translations of various foreign tongues. Along with carrying home books from the required subjects, many pupils built arm muscles and knowledge by bearing the extra credits accompanying the quote boxes of debate (often confused with recipe boxes of foods), materials for arts and crafts, and instruments and sheet music from the music department. Many took part in extra curricular activities, finding positions as class officers, Student Congress representatives and team members.

With Assemblies And Clubs.

Transformation marked the junior year. Juniors attentively watched the English language transform from Beowulf's Anglo-Saxon form to the modern English of today; their sometimes take-it-for-granted attitude of a rolling ball change into an understanding of the complexities of force vectors, friction and acceleration; a limited recall of historical facts transform into a broader comprehension of American history; and previous knowledge of mathematical fundamentals change into more advanced algebraic skills.

But the most important transformation occurred in the juniors themselves. A summer's growth helped junior athletes finally attain long wanted varsity positions. A year's growth gave many juniors added responsibility, as spring revealed new Student Congress officers and Saga and Epic editors.

Charles Miller, Junior class president; Susan Wilson, vice president; Donna Holmes, secretary; and Molly Glover, treasurer, typified Junior class spirit with their efficient and instrumental work in Prom planning. The Prom committee devoted a vast amount of their valuable time to the Prom.

At halftime of a close game, Junior Larry Broockerd pauses for refreshment and relates the plays to the concessionaires.

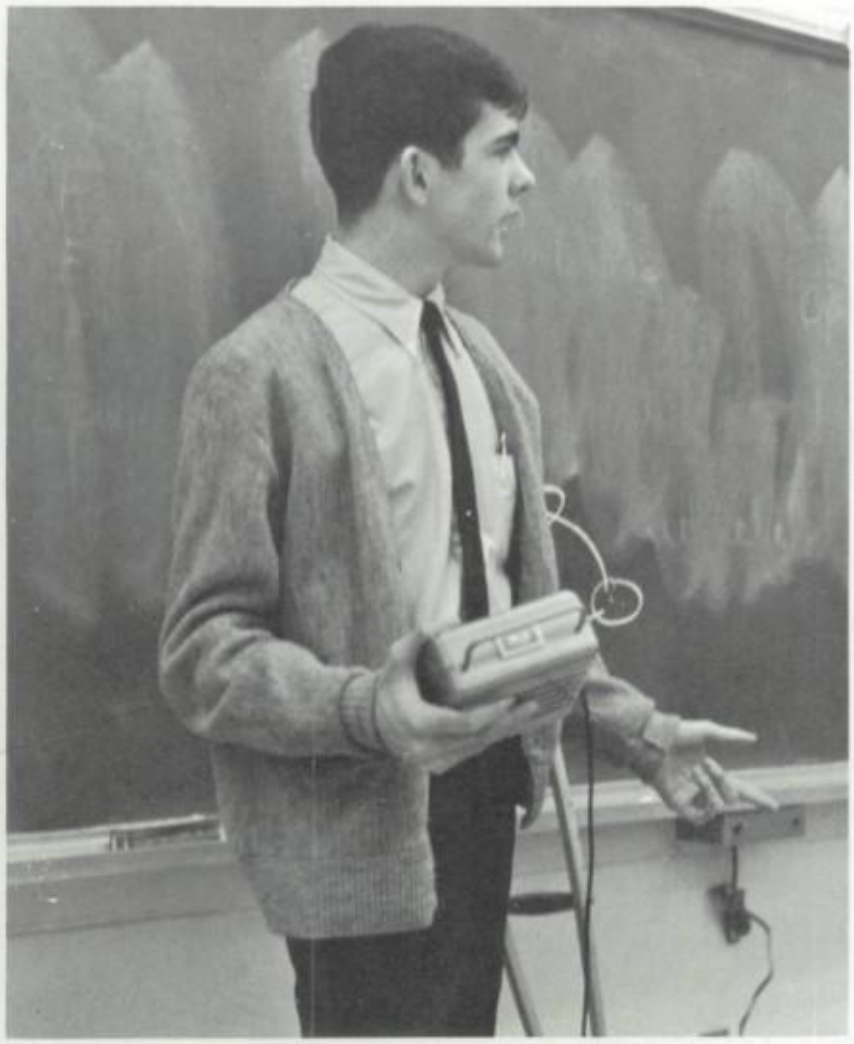
By Springtime's Exquisite Junior-Senior Prom.

In recognition of athletic achievement at the fall honor and awards assembly, Coach Correll presents Bill Hawkins with his second year letter.

Seniors' Accomplishments



Larry Crockett looks over the equipment that brought Mr. Brown's classes to his bedside during his illness.

After a close election full of perfumed campaign posters and Beatle campaign songs, the Senior class elected their officers—Parker Consaul, president; Steve Hedtke, vice president; Mary Lee Tussey, secretary; and Barb Elliot, treasurer. Led by these officers, the five senior committees—Finance, Cap and Gown, Assembly, Gift, and Announcements—prepared for Senior Day and graduation.

After a loud session of cheering, Pep Club officers proclaimed seniors "the most spirited class." True to form, the Senior Publicity committee encouraged Viking teams with such posters as "Break the Habit—Beat Wyandotte!"

Seniors led every phase of Viking activity. The annual and newspaper were both edited by seniors, while at the same time seniors captained the varsity teams. As officers and representatives in Student Congress, seniors worked toward their own parking lot and new trophy case for the spoils of senior debators.

But the climax of senior activity was reached on May 26, when the class of '65 received their diplomas to strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" and became West's first full-graduating class.

Fran Slibeck and Laura Guess decorate the office rubber plant in the typical Yuletide fashion.

Mr. Cramer reminds his seventh hour class not to "let the tidal wave swamp your kayaks."

Culminate With Diplomas

National Merit Finalists—Buddy Ferguson, Sharon Watt, Bob Daly, Barb Schiller, Randy Hedlund, Tom Langer, and Jon Jensen.

Senior Officers—Mary Lee Tussy, secretary; Steve Hedtke, vice president; Barb Elliott, treasurer; Parker Consaul, president.

Senior Executive Committee—Helen Sandy, Bill Hawkins, Barb Schiller, Mary Lee Tussey, Parker Consaul, Vicki Greenlee, Barb Elliott, Mike Scott, Steve Hedtke.

On May 26 West's First

". . . has satisfactorily completed the course of study prescribed by the Board of Education for the High School District and is therefore entitled to this Diploma."

So ended three years of English assignments, Student Congress dances, and football games for West's 737 graduating seniors. With diplomas in hand, the Class of 1965 became Shawnee Mission West's first full-graduating class.

May 26 was the night every senior had been waiting for. It was an evening for independence, but it was also an evening of reminiscence. It was an evening for remembering the first football victory over North, the four overtimes of the East-West game, the long hours of study before the last semester tests, the English term paper with its footnotes and note cards, and the golden moments of the Prom. Their high school days over, West's seniors lingered on these memories for but a short while, for ahead lay new vistas of education and employment to attain.

Barb Schiller uses an original method to measure Steve Bridges for his graduation robe.

The graduation cap, symbol of three years of diligent high school work, sits peacefully near West's library of knowledge.

Full Graduation Class Receive Their Diplomas

Lingering for a last moment behind the closed doors of high school, graduating seniors prepare for new vistas and adventures in learning.

Suzette -
We made it - a carbon year of anxiety (or however ya spell it) of most browning A we get to sit down and eat lunch or most anyway, it's been a hell and I'm really glad I got to know you better. I hope we at least have some classes together next year -
Best of Luck,
Dwight Peterson

experience! Youre quite a girl once I got to has been an experience in itself, but I'll live. Hope I se you next year, even though you'll be a senior. Too bad

I'm one year too young! Be good

We really had some good and fun times and I hope we can have more this summer and next year and..... I have much fun planned this summer, so look out! Plan to see ya. Alene

Suzette!
You're always in the recess room! What goes on in there? I mean (blush) you've been a good friend and I hope we don't have a study hall together - I just couldn't take it! Have a nice summer!

Suzette,
It's been

Now I gotta fill this page with writing!
You're "6 yrs" story gives me a ray of hope every time I think of it, although I've given up. I love to know that somebody can do it!
We lived thru McDon + the rush to the yrs."
so we should be friends forever with an obstacle course like we've had! We haven't etc. made any plans for the summer, but I do want to see you. Call me sometime — anytime and you know me, if you want to go somewhere, I'll do anything!
I haven't got to see you as much as I'd like — I think I've told you that before — but next yr. + this summer let's try to do something about it. How about Guitars?

You're a good listener - don't change.
Have fun + "Stay" moral!

Suzette,

Well just like you said, it's hard to know where to start!

I just don't know what to say to the girl that's been my closest friend all year! I never could have made it through without you.

I never thought when I first met you in homeroom that day that we'd get to be so close

It's been so much fun exchanging "love affairs" "problems" plus millions of other problems.

I just can't say enough to thank you for taking me through this year. It sounds like I'll never see you this summer by all the stuff I've said, but I know we'll be getting together quite a bit.

I wish you all the luck in the world and may your every dream come true. (espically Al!)

May God bless you.

Be good-

The SAGA Staff Captures The Important Viking Moments

A year at West is made up of millions of minutes. Every moment is a memory to someone in the swirling throng that crowds "Times Square" or that fills the auditorium. The purpose of a yearbook is to capture these memories and preserve them for years to come.

The Saga staff has tried to capture these separate memories from every aspect of school life. Picture taking and retaking became a daily occurrence as the school year rolled toward its end. Yearbook writers interviewed students and teachers concerning classes ranging from cooking to Latin to analytical geometry. Activities including the intramurals, teacher's tea, and the Prom were visited by these same Saga correspondents. With pen and ink the art staff gave the book body and form along with a beautiful set of portraits of the school. Every facet of the school was touched by the probing minds of the Saga staff.

Many of the things that went into this yearbook will probably never happen again at West. Things like a four overtime loss to East or another Miss Tululu Bankfoot will be almost impossible to duplicate. Even the common confusion in "Times Square" won't be the same. And never again can there be a first three-year graduating class. This was a unique year at Shawnee Mission West.

The 1965 Saga is the story of all the things that made West. Each joy or sadness is a part of the West story and a part of the Saga. We, the staff, hope that you will love and enjoy this Saga and its story as much as we do.

Lingering in the West hallways long after the close of school the Viking scholars relax momentarily in "Times Square" and discuss the tests and classes of the past day and make plans for things to come.

The Bridge Grows Silent As West's School Year Closes

Just as all things must end, the year at West closes with a walk down an empty corridor into the bright sunlight.

The bridge is silent now. The throng between classes, the rhythm of the Royales, and the music of the Pep Rally are gone for another year. For at West the 1965 school year has come to a close.

But even though the palm trees of the Prom sway no longer and the senior basketball players have played their last game, one thing remains—the memory of West's third and most exciting year. Memories of the first football victory over North, the crowning of West's Homecoming royalty, the candy-flavored Christmas formal, the drama of Our Town, the band's performance at a Chief's game, the hours put in working on The Sound of Music, the winning of the regional basketball tournament, the laughter of Mr. Roberts, Senior Day, and graduation—all of these will linger on for each Viking.

The doors to the 1965 school year are closed, but only to have new ones opened. Sophomores and juniors will return to bring life to the bridge next year, seniors have left only to accomplish more—but none will forget the year 1965—this year at West.
